FESTIVAL FANTOCHIO

The only contemporary puppetry, robotic, and animation festival in the US—Festival Fantochio—comes alive on stage at the Bayfront Theater at Fort Mason Center. This fifth annual event features a spectacular blend of classical puppetry, reality-bending theater, and special effects, produced by Climate Theatre at four different venues, June 2 through 26.

Opening the Festival at the Bayfront are Teatro Hugo & Ines, a theatrical duo from Bosnia and Peru. They create a fusion of pantomime and puppetry by pairing body parts (a knee, a foot, or a hand) with a few props to create puppet characters having lives of their own. Hugo and Ines perform Wednesday, June 2 through Sunday, June 5, at 8pm with matinees Saturday and Sunday at 2pm. Tickets are $17 for adults, $12 students and seniors, $7 children under 12.

To close the festival, the Bay Area's renowned comedy troupe Fratelli Bologna presents the world premiere of "Ubu's In America" by Merle Kessler and J. Raoul Brody. This tale of a despotic ruler who methodically takes control of America is portrayed by a cast of five that creates 35 different characters, using puppets of all sizes. "Ubu's In America" plays at the Bayfront Theater Wednesday, June 22, through Sunday, June 26. All performances are at 8pm; ticket prices range from $15 to $8.

Also appearing as part of Festival Fantochio are Theatre Concrete and the Philippe Genty Company production of "Desirs Parade" at the Climate Theatre, and "Puppet Salad," a combination of puppet performances and animation clips at the Icon Byte Bar & Grill.

The Festival is directed by Climate Theatre artistic director Joegh Bullock and co-director Mike Oznowicz, with special technological projects by Mark Petrakis and support from the Henson Foundation. For information, call 392-4400.

ETHNIC DANCE FESTIVAL

Ballet Saungamare West African Dance Company

"Where else would you find an energetic West African fertility dance; a regal and intricate Filipino dance inspired by an earthquake; a 75-year-old Norwegian dance master and an eight-year-old Balinese warrior soloist?" says City Celebration Executive Director Robert R. Allen.

The answer is the nationally renowned San Francisco Ethnic Dance Festival.

A production of City Celebration, a longtime resident organization at Fort Mason Center, the Dance Festival is "a zestful celebration of human diversity focused through the prism of dance," according to the Los Angeles Times.

"Our biggest festival to date, this year will feature 700 costumed dancers and musicians in works from 44 companies and soloists in a global celebration of world dance," says Allen. "It's simply a treasure and the Bay Area's gift to the world."

The 1994 Festival, "Dance Around The World," presents nine thrilling performances at the San Francisco Palace of Fine Arts. The 16th annual extravaganza of world dance and music this year features three Sunday Family Matinees—June 3, 12 and 19—with tickets as low as $10.

This year's Festival Honoree is internationally renowned South Indian artist and master teacher Mythili Kumar, a specialist in Bharatanatyam classical dance. Her training and performance style is based on centuries-old tradition, inspired by ancient Sanskrit writings.

In addition to her work as a solo artist, Kumar is artistic director of the San Jose-based Abhinaya Dance Company. She has been acclaimed for her innovative group choreography combining Western themes with traditional Indian movement. She is a featured soloist on the June 3 and 4 Festival programs.

"Dance Around The World" takes place June 3 through 19, Friday and Saturday at 8pm, Sunday at 2pm, at the Palace of Fine Arts, Bay and Lyon Streets. Tickets are $14, $17 and $26 for evening performances, $10 and $15 for matinees. Many performances last year were sold out. Tickets may be charged through City Box Office, 392-4400, or (510) 762-BASS. For group sales, call 392-4400; for Festival information, call 474-3916.

AWARD-WINNING THEATER

The Magic Theatre is one of American regional theater's most distinguished not-for-profit institutions. For more than 26 years, the Magic has been dedicated to the development and production of new plays. It has premieried more than 200 works by some of today's most important playwrights, garnering a Pulitzer Prize, ten Obies, and many other awards.

The Magic gave Sam Shepard a forum and an artistic home, as playwright-in-residence from 1975 to 1983. Today, it is home to playwrights Marlane Meyer, Jon Robin Baitz and Claire Chafee.

This month, Magic Theatre presents the world premiere of Chafee's Even Among These Rocks, directed by David Schweizer.

Chafee is the award-winning author of Why We Have A Body, which premiered last season at the Magic. It received critical accolades, and was extended for a six-month run. Why We Have A Body has since been filmed for inclusion in the prestigious Theatre Collection at the Library for the Performing Arts at New York's Lincoln Center. A staged reading of the play at Lincoln Center was directed by Academy Award-winning actress Linda Hunt.

Set in contemporary San Francisco, Chafee's new play is "an eccentrically poetic portrait of gay and lesbian pals trying to build a new family in a society that doesn't quite get it."

Even Among These Rocks previews June 8 through 11, opens June 14, and runs through July 17, with performances Wednesday through Saturday at 8:30pm, Sunday at 2 and 7:30pm (except Sunday, June 19, when there is no evening performance). Tickets are $17 to $21.

Continuing through June 12 at the Magic's Northside Theatre is Athol Fugard's timely Playland, directed by Benny Sato Ambush.

This searing two-actor drama brings together a white veteran of South Africa's Border War and the black watchman for a traveling amusement park pitched on the outskirts of a small town. The time is New Year's Eve, 1989, just weeks before the release of Nelson Mandela and the onset of F. W. de Klerk's reforms.

In Playland, the first work Fugard wrote after the release of Mandela, the playwright captures South Africa's tense transition from a culture of segregation and violence to one of hope and possibilities.

Playland opened May 10, with performances Wednesday through Saturday at 8:30pm, Sunday at 2 and 7:30pm. Tickets are $17 to $21. Special "Pay-What-You-Can" Performances: Thursday, May 26 at 8:30pm and Sunday, May 29 at 2pm.

For reservations for either production, call the Magic Box Office, 441-8822.

MAKE*A*CIRCUS SUMMER

Fort Mason Center's Make*A*Circus sets sail to deliver its 21st season of free-in-the-parks fun when it presents Summer Festival Days in more than 40 parks and recreation areas around California. Make*A*Circus is a participatory circus/theater troupe linking the arts with social needs, focusing its shows on important educational themes.

Each Summer Festival Day is a three-part event. The day begins with the company show, a contemporary professional circus theater production filled with daring stunts, comedy and original jazz. That is followed by free circus skills workshops for audience members in juggling, clowning, stilt-walking, acrobatics and more. Then comes the community show, when everyone gets into the ring to show off their new skills.

This year Make*A*Circus presents two seafaring shows—one atop the waves and one in the ocean depths. In the company show, "Pirates," the circus is captured by a swarthy buccaneer and his mates in a comic caper that challenges some myths about the glamour of gang membership. In the community show, "Water World," a greedy developer plans an underwater theme park, and the entire undersea world (the new stars from the audience) must work together to stop him.

Summer Festival Days last from June through October. Other Make*A*Circus programs take place year-round. Schools Tours bring workshops & performances into Bay Area schools; Clown Therapy teaches clowning skills to aid in physical rehabilitation; the Teen Apprentice Program provides training and employment to high-risk teenagers.

To find out about the Summer Festival Days schedule, call 776-8470. For information on other programs, call 776-8477.

SAVING SHARKS

Sharks are thought of as fearsome and invulnerable. In fact, the populations of many species are facing a rapid and serious decline. For the past four years, the Pelagic Shark Research Foundation, with support from Earth Island Institute, has conducted research and helped increase public awareness about the need to protect them.

PSRF is a nonprofit organization dedicated to dispelling the myths that have led to the abuse and serious decline of pelagic (open ocean) and coastal shark species.

Although a relatively new group, PSRF is leading worldwide preservation efforts. It operates a tag-and-release program to study various populations in the Monterey Bay Marine Sanctuary, located off the central California coast.

PSRF also conducts research on local basking sharks. Currently, it's estimated that fewer than 300 individuals live in Monterey Bay waters, without state or federal laws to protect them. PSRF is working to place basking sharks on the Endangered Species List and to educate the public about their plight.

Earth Island Institute invites participation in a whale-watching trip to the Farallones, presented by PSRF and Oceanic Society Expeditions. The trip, on Sunday, June 26, is a special benefit to help fund PSRF's preservation efforts.

The day begins with a light breakfast and a slide and video presentation on PSRF's work by its director, Sean Van Sommeran.

Learn about sharks, whales, and threats facing them. Get a first-hand report about International Whaling Commission meetings and anti-whaling efforts. The breakfast and presentation take place at Fort Mason Center, in Landmark Building C, starting at 7:30am.

Following the presentation, the participants embark from San Francisco Yacht Harbor for a trip to the Farallones. Joining Van Sommeran is Dave Phillips, Executive Director of Earth Island Institute. They act as naturalists/guides for the trip. Glen Martin, a dedicated outdoor writer for the San Francisco Chronicle, is a special guest for the day.

In addition to sharks, voyagers may expect to see whales, sea birds, and other marine life. Lunch is served on board. The trip ends at 4:30pm.

Tickets are $100 per person, including breakfast and lunch. Advance reservations are required, and should be made by May 23. For information, call 788-3666.

SUMMER ART FOR KIDS

At the SF Children's Art Center, kids ages 2 to 12 discover how to draw, paint, sculpt, print and do collage in small classes with individual attention. By "exploring the organized freedom of the studio," the children gain confidence and their art becomes a visual diary of their progress. A variety of programs are offered year-round, including extended classes, Friday afternoon Art Camps, and special birthday parties.

This summer, the Art Center offers a series of special four-day workshops at Fort Mason Center for children ages 5 to 12. These workshops offer students the chance to learn new techniques and developskills in four specific media — ceramics, maskmaking, printmaking and papermaking.

In the summer ceramics workshop, students make clay sculptures and kiln-fire them. In maskmaking, they create faces in a variety of media, from plaster and clay to collage and papier maché. Printmaking covers string prints, transfer drawings, printing over found objects, rainbow rolls and other techniques. In papermaking, students learn about paper pulping, casting, and embossing.

All of the workshops take place Monday through Thursday, 3:30 to 5:30pm. Ceramics workshops are June 20-23 and July 25-28; maskmaking June 2-5 and August 8-11; printmaking July 11-14 and August 15-18; and papermaking July 18-21 and August 22-25. Each workshop costs $110. For information, call 771-0292.

HISTORY IN THE MAKING

The Human Rights Campaign Fund and HRCF Foundation holds its 1994 San Francisco Dinner at the Festival Pavilion at Fort Mason Center. The theme is "History in the Making."

The Human Rights Campaign Fund is the nation's largest lesbian and gay political organization. Established in 1980, its agenda includes ending discrimination and protecting the safety and health of lesbians, gay men and bisexuals.

The HRCF works both nationally and locally. Activities include contributing to candidates who support the organization's positions on AIDS and women's health issues; lobbying Congress; and opposing anti-gay initiatives.

The 1994 Dinner includes a cocktail reception, silent auction, dinner and dance. The evening pays tribute to James C. Hormel, a founder and major contributor to HRCF. The Jerry Berg Leadership Award is presented to David Bell; the James C. Hormel Community Services Award is presented to Sherry Harris. The Keynote Speaker is Oregon's Governor Barbara Roberts.

The dinner takes place on Saturday, June 11, from 6pm until midnight. Admission: Congressional Tickets, $175; Senatorial Tickets $250; Presidential Tickets, $500. There is also a limited supply of Candidate Tickets at $125, for first-time attendees only. For tickets or information about the event, call 821-0824.

PARADISE OPEN TO ALL

Santo Niño by Manuel Ocampo

Provocative images of lynched animals, dismembered bodies and cannibalism scream of greed, rage, and physical violence. This powerful exhibition at The Mexican Museum, guest curated by Chicano Bay Area artists Rupert Garcia and Enrique Chagoya, includes more than 25 paintings and monotypes, with five paintings created specifically for this show.

"Manuel Ocampo: Paraíso abierto a todos" is a solo exhibition by Filipino artist Manuel Ocampo. Through these incendiary images, Ocampo reexamines the historical legacy of his native Philippines: the Spanish conquest, the ongoing cultural and military hegemony of the United States, and the dominating presence of the Catholic church.

The Philippines is a country with a past similar to that of Mexico, filled with oppression and physical atrocities. "These parallel histories have produced artists that create art with a similar approach," said Tere Romo, resident curator of The Mexican Museum. "Ocampo's work, like that of Chicano and other Latino artists, incorporates native, Spanish and Euro-American cultural icons to produce a very unique and contemporary art."

Trained by a Catholic priest in the Spanish retablo painting style, Ocampo uses this technique to criticize the religious and political fanaticism of Spanish Colonialism during the 17th century. He intensifies the viewer's experience by artificially aging the images, framing them in baroque gilded frames, even "falsifying" their dates.

However, as co-curator Chagoya observes, "the most important element in the artistic work of Manuel Ocampo is not a kind of religious irreverence, nor war of an ethnic or anticolonial nature. Rather, it is the struggle of the spirit to survive the limitations of matter—the spirit (not the illusion) of freedom attempting to escape from the forms of fundamentalism that imprison it."

In his mid-twenties, Ocampo continues to gain national and international recognition through his exhibitions in the United States, Germany, London, Japan and the Philippines. Last year, he participated in a group show, "43rd Biennial Exhibition of American Painting," at the Corcoran Gallery in Washington, DC.

"Often, my work is labeled as simply anti-colonial," says Ocampo. "While this is certainly an aspect of my work, I hope that viewers also see the absurdity, humor, and fatalism in the images I portray. I approach fully loaded symbols head on with an irreverence for meaning which a 'moral' majority may hold. But in the act of painting, I imbue the symbols with my own meaning."

"Paraíso abierto a todos" opened April 27 and continues through July 10. This exhibition is not recommended for children under 13.

The Mexican Museum is open Wednesday through Sunday, noon to 5pm. Admission is $3, except on Free Museum Day, the first Wednesday of each month, when all museums and galleries at Fort Mason Center are open from noon to 8pm, and admission is free (see June 1). For information about this exhibition, call The Mexican Museum, 441-0404.
